

Tibet and Dalai Lama - I Ching and Other Ways - Only for Intellectuals

By Zhuang Zhi

Introduction by Tibetan Buddhism

If I knew this way I would be in Nirvana I tell you all about this publication and listening to his stories - Shomit Sirohi I mean - we are all happy. Dalai Lama here, what if I told the women he is always about in poetry and serving them in Christian jokes and customs - that life is a profound Faiz poem - we are like that, we are like that.

Sirohi is with Zhuang Zhi and off to work singing in the train. This actually is called the book of tears - when you read that story - it says in this format - I Ching I have learnt - it is a fate the pencils tell us to be depressed when it changes like the ways into more misfortune like peasant lives, and this then changes again - to happiness when in fact a young man is busy flirting.

It is like that the anaxagram which is a story - that pencils and pink photos develop the virtual happiness of a person who then changes his own fate by following the ways. Thank you, Shomit Sirohi - I call him in simple lower Vehicle teaching -we were actually Mahayana - which means rituals and trials of a ritualistic type he has seen in Delhi University and Nalanda therefore - he has seen them, we are that devout on this story - Prakrit reveals that naturalism will one day win when practiced - follow the tale now, a rare work, a rare meaning - a rare sublime meaning called - follow the ways of the I Ching, it is profound that we can just joke in a sublime way - always for Others.

I. I Ching is just a story

I mean a lot of stories.

II. Just be funny - don't be serious

It will save you.
